

THE 2005 ELECTION NIGHT DRINKING GAME

WHILE WATCHING ELECTION NIGHT COVERAGE, TAKE ONE DRINK IF:

- Any candidate other than Tariana Turia speaks Maori.
- Jeanette Fitzsimmons refers to the life expectancy of the bottlenose dolphin.
- Don Brash is forced to mention the Exclusive Brethren.
- Helen Clark talks about "ordinary New Zealanders".
- Any candidate mentions an ordinary New Zealander by name.
- Any candidate mentions a gay member of his or her family.
- Any minor candidate complains about being overlooked by the media.
- Any candidate uses the phrase "when I'm Prime Minister".

TAKE 2 DRINKS DURING JOHN CAMPBELL OR MARK SAINSBURY'S COVERAGE IF:

- There is a technical hitch resulting in, no picture, no sound or some other hilarious cock up.
- If Russell Brown turns up.

DRAIN YOUR GLASS IF JOHN CAMPBELL OR MARK SAINSBURY SAYS ANY OF THE FOLLOWING PHRASES:

- 'The Worm'
- '160km/h'
- 'Corngate'
- 'voter apathy'
- 'Dancing with the Stars'
- 'the foreshore issue'
- 'Brash' and 'liar' in the same sentence
- 'concerns about the postal vote'
- 'The price of fuel'
- 'I'll have to stop you there'
- 'Marvelous'

DRINK SOLIDLY FOR THE NEXT THREE YEARS IF:
Winston becomes Prime Minister.
